Starting a program from Windows

If a program is not listed in the Programs menu, you can start

it from Windows

view of your computer's contents as a hierarchy or "tree."

You can easily see the content of each drive and folder on your computer. To use this method, you should know the file name and location of the program's executable file (this file ends with .exe).

This example opens WordPad using Windows Explorer.

1

Click Start, then point to All Programs.

2

Click Accessories.

3

Click Windows Explorer.

4

Click My Computer to expand the window.

5

6

In the left part of the window, under the C: icon, double-click the folder containing the program, in this case Program Files.

Windows

Files folder on the right side of the window. The left side of the window shows all the folders contained within the Program Files folder.

7

In the left part of the window, click Windows NT.

8

Click Accessories.

Windows

Accessories folder on the right side of the window.

9

In the right part of the window, double-click WordPad.

The operating system opens WordPad.

To close the program, click the Close button in the upper-right corner of the program's window.
