Using a file extension

Most programs assign an extension to the file name that identifies the file as being created in the program with a particular format.

For

example, Microsoft

file name with an extension of ".doc" is assumed to be a Microsoft Word file. Creating your own extension is usually unwise, since the program is unlikely to recognize a strange extension and may refuse to handle your file correctly.

Printing your work

Ensure the operating system is set up for your printer as described in "Setting up a printer" on page

To print a file:

1

If your printer is not on, turn it on now.

2

In your Windows

The program displays a Print dialog box.
