Introduction

General Information

Toshiba is not liable for any damage or loss caused directly or indirectly by the malfunction of this unit, including, without limitation, any one of the following:

- Failure to record contents intended to be recorded by the consumer.
- Failure to edit contents as intended by the consumer.

note:

In the event your product is returned to our service centre, we are unable to guarantee your recordings will be maintained.

Hard Disk Drive (HDD) Handling

The HDD is a precision apparatus that is susceptible to vibration, strong impact or dirt. Depending on the installation environment or handling, the unit may become partially damaged or in the worst case, recording or replaying may not be available. Especially while the HDD is in motion, do not subject it to vibration or strong impact or pull out the power plug. And if a power failure occurs, the content of the recording / replaying programme may be lost.

HDD rotates at high speed when in operation. Be sure that rotation has stopped and then move the unit without subjecting it to strong impact or vibration.

We do not assume any liability for losses caused by misuse or malfunction.

About HDD

The HDD is a special device which has high recording density and is suited for long-time recording or high-speed cueing but by contrast, has many factors which can cause breakage.

- When an HDD fails, recovery of recorded content (data) may be impossible.
- The HDD is not a permanent storage location of the recorded contents.

About the remaining capacity of HDD recording time:

In recording to the HDD, the Remaining Capacity Display may differ from the actual recordable time as this unit adopts Variable Bit Rate encoding, which varies the recording (storage) amount of data in conformity with the amount of information in the video signal. Before recording to the HDD, ensure there is sufficient space on the HDD by deleting unnecessary titles in advance.
